

Rights and Resources for Respondent

Rights

Schools must respond promptly to Title IX sexual harassment in a manner that is not deliberately indifferent, which means a response that is not clearly unreasonable in light of the known circumstances. The Respondent is the person who has been reported to be the perpetrator of conduct that could constitute sex-based harassment. The rights of the respondent are:

- Be presumed not responsible unless the weight of the evidence substantiates a policy violation.
- To receive a fair, impartial, timely investigation and hearing process.
- Be treated with respect and without prejudice or presumption.
- To fully participate in any process.
- Be free from retaliation.
- To privacy and access to confidential crisis services.
- To get information about and take advantage of campus support resources and supportive measures.
- Have the College explain the scope of a no contact directive, if applicable.
- Know the status of the complaint at any point in the process.
- Know the outcome of the investigation and hearing, and the reasons for that outcome, in writing.
- Appeal the outcome of the resolution or grievance process,
- Have an advisor of choice. The advisor may accompany the respondent to administrative meetings and proceedings related to the resolution of a complaint, including interviews with the investigator. Please note, however, that generally an advisor is a support person and should not speak for the respondent during the administrative process.
